

Julian Budagov celebrated his 70th birthday in July soon after overseeing the completion of a major Joint Institute for Nuclear Research (JINR) contribution to the ATLAS experiment at CERN. The Dubna-based JINR was responsible for constructing 65 21-ton modules for the experiment's hadron barrel tile calorimeter, the last of which was complete by June.

close or Esc Key