

JINR rewards Vladimir Kadyshevsky

At a recent session of the Committee of Plenipotentiaries of the governments of JINR member states, JINR scientific leader Vladimir Kadyshevsky (right) won the Nikolai Nikolaevich Bogoliubov Prize for 2003-2005 for his outstanding contribution to theoretical physics and the development of new algebraic and geometrical approaches to the formulation of quantum field theory. He is seen here with the JINR director, Alexei Sissakian.
